DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Clark Farmhouse is a structure built partly of brick and wood. The original house is the western end of the house. It is a two story brick building two bays square. The bricks are laid in a combination of common bond and a scattering of flemish bond. There is a large covered over fireplace in the east gable of this section with a hewn wooden lentil. There is a break neck stair to the second floor. This section has a gable roof which has pinned rafters and cross ties. The flooring on the first floor is tongue and grove. There is an entrance on the south side. The north wall is stuccoed and a small two story frame addition has been added to the west gable end.

The main part of the house is a large three bay long by two bay deep frame structure built around 1820. It is two stories in height with a gable roof covered with asphalt shingles. The earliest siding on the house is level siding which is on the rear wall the east gable has aluminum siding while the front has German siding. There is a one story porch on the rear and front. The house has a central entrance with a four light transom. There was a central stair hall with a room to each side with fireplace. In the east room is a stepped mantel with incised panels. Another mantel like it was in the west room The window sash is 6/6.

The house has a stone foundation with cellar.
